Press proof

This sheet is a proof, and everything a reading software shows of it is on it: a title, this paragraph, and a colour bar placed twice. Under it the file states the run it belongs to, the page states the plate it was set for, and the bar states the ink it was drawn against.

None of those three is drawn, and no reading software shows them. Each is filed under the name of the program that left it, stamped with the moment that program last touched it, and travels with the file until it opens the file again.
