Deed of assignment

Reference ACME/2026/0417, filed 17 April 2026

This deed claims the second part of the archival standard at the level above the plain one: on top of the promise that the page keeps its looks, every mark of ink drawn on it says which letter it stands for. A registry searching thirty thousand deeds for a reference finds this one; a clerk copying a clause out of it gets the clause, not a row of question marks. That is the whole of the difference between the two levels. Nothing about the layout changes, and nothing is added to the page.
